SECTION III. (Continued).—Light and Shade:

CHAPTER XXVII.—Parā and Aparā-prakṛtī:

Light and shade as Parā and Aparā-prakṛtī.—Jīvātmā as the third.—The next stage of condensation as sāttva, rajas and tāmas; corresponding to Āyuḥ (or Jīvātmā) prakṛtī, Parā and Aparā respectively.—Endless repetitions of these and further and further condensations.—Manas, buddhi, and ahaṅkāra.—Chitta, Mahātva and manasva.—Thence three ākāsha.—Thence three vāyus, and so on.—Endless triplets, even denser than earth.—Other counts, by sevens, etc.—Formation of atoms by action and reaction.

CHAPTER XXVIII.—Spirit and Matter:

The seven taṭṭvas.—All as one element, 'matter'.—Their grouping into threes under the stress of the triplicity of consciousness.—Mahat, buddhi and ākāsha.—Vāyu, tejas and āpasa.—Summation in prthivi.—Evolution and involution of these taṭṭvas in correspondence with the Paths of Pursuit and of Renunciation followed by the jīva.—Explanation, in terms of the seven taṭṭvas of the nine dravyas of the Vaiśeṣika.—Of the twenty-five dravyas (or paḍārthas or CHAPTER XXXIX.—THE PSYCHOLOGY OF KRIYĀ AND PRATIKAṚYĀ—LOVE AND HATE:

Restatement of basic principles.—The Primal Śrīvāmś or Thread of Unity.—Its reflection into pseudo-infinite threads of individuality.—All the functions of life and operations of the world based on and made possible only by these threads, which hold together all discrete and bring about all the interplay between them.—The interdependence of all jivas and tattvas.—The necessity of all, from the transcendentstantial standpoint.—The necessity of dealing with one side of a question at a time from the empirical standpoint.—Śrīvāmś as laws.—The explanation of lawlessness and disorder.—The psychological aspects of the thread-soul, (the law of individual being, character, principle, etc.)—Rāga and đveśha or Love and Hate.

CHAPTER XXX.—THE ENDLESS MOODS OF THE OPPOSITES, LOVE AND HATE:

Three main sub-divisions of love.—Of hate.—Superiority, equality, inferiority.—Different names of the triplet for the two sides, of love and of hate.—Correspondences with A, U and M.—Why the 'marks' of the Self are spoken of as six, rather than three.—Metaphysical transcendence, by the Self, of all marks.

CHAPTER XXXI.—TRIPLETS:

I-This-Not.—Pratyayātmā—Jīvātmā—Divipālāṇī.—Śaṭṭu-cīḍa-nāṇa, and its sub-divisions.—Manna-buddhi-ahānīkāra.—Sensation, perception, imagination; apprehension, comprehension, ambition; position, composition, assumption.—Expansion of the small into the Great Self.—Relation of subordinate and gross between primary and secondary, radical and derivative, triplets.

Śaṭṭu-rajās-tāmās.—Dravya-guna-karma.—Twelve factors included in four triplets, corresponding with twelve logia.—Correspondences and reflections.

CHAPTER XXXII.—THE TRIPLET OF SUBSTANCE-

QUALITY-MOVEMENT:

The reason of this endless prapāṭha, 'quintuplicate' ado.—Svabhāva.—Interdependence of past, present and future in the independence of Svabhāva.—Distinction between Svabhāva or cause plus effect and kāraṇa or cause.—Dravya-pradraya-amudraya; kāraṇa-prakāraṇa-āṅgakāraṇa; gūpta-praṅgaṇa-amugṇa.—The pseudocontinuity despite manifest discreteness of dravya, etc.—Śaṭṭhāya-views.—The subdivisions or kinds of dravya dealt with by Nyāya and Vaibhavīkāla.—Division into nine by triplication of triplet.—Precedence and precedence amongst the factors of the triplet.—Significance of the Nyāya-word, nigrāma-śīṣṇ for fallacy.

CHAPTER XXXIII.—THE PRINCIPAL VARIETIES OF

SUBSTANCE, ATTRIBUTE, AND MOVEMENT:

Seven principal varieties of each.—Preva-ience of septenaries in our particular world-system.—Such distinctions conventional, for positive delimitation of any brahmánanda is impossible because of continuous inclusion of smaller in larger.— Kāla or Time equivalent to Mahāt, and Dīk or Space to buḍhī-ṭṭīya.—Sensor and motor organs corresponding to these.—To be developed later.—At this stage of evolution, manifesting as mental functioning.—Seven bodies of human beings.—Seven layers in each atom.—Sampādāna or development of these.—The seven gṛgus.— Logia in terms of gṛgas and not dṛṣṭaya.— Why?—The five known sense-qualities as the qualities of the five dṛṣṭayān samkhya or number as the quality of Kāla or Time, and sanyoga or conjunction of dīk or space.
—Arithmetic and geometry, etc.—Considerations of geometry, trigonometry, etc., in connection with dīk.—Detailed consideration of dṛṣṭaya in terms of logia in the Śūdraśa of the Vēdayas.—Only cursorily touched upon here.—The peculiarity of scriptural sentences; each self-complete.

CHAPTER XXXIV.—THE EVOLUTION OF Dṛṣṭaya:

Nyaya-method of determining the logia.—
‘I-number-not’.—‘I-number’—’.
Mahāt and buḍhī-ṭṭīya.—Sens-organ and qualities corresponding to these.
Other names, ṣāḍ for buḍhī-ṭṭīya, anupiḍaka for Mahātaṭīya.—Reasons.
Gradual evolution of ṭṭīya in successive mānaṭṣṣara, together with corresponding qualities and senses.—Various kinds of brahmāṇa.—Samvṛti and pravṛti, the qualities of ṣāḍ and anupiḍaka.—

Bṛhat-śāstra and kṛṣṇa, their sense-organs.— Considerations as to the normal development of these in the course of ages and mānaṭṣṣara, and their abnormal development by yoga.—Organs of production corresponding to the two.

CHAPTER XXXV.—VIBRATION:

Résumé.—The form of the logia pertaining to ākāsa, etc.—Reason for the form.— Objections.—Answers.—Vibration, the manifestor of qualities.—Expansion and contraction, action and reaction, in-breathing and out-breathing, ṣpandā and sphyūra.
—Logia connected with other substances and qualities.—Relations with space, time, manus and buddhi.—The conditions and laws governing vibration.—The physiology of human vocal vibrations.

CHAPTER XXXVI.—LOVE AND HATE:
The pair of Love and Hate as the ‘ethical’
form of the primal ‘metaphysical’ pair of Self and Not-Self, and the ‘psychical’ form of the ‘physical’ pair of harmonious and discordant vibration.—Musical vibrations and emotions.—Harmonisation of thoughts and emotions, in science and poetry, and the opposite, considered as wise use and unwise waste of time.—Science and Literature in terms of Love and Hate.—The motifs and ornamental figures of rhetoric and poetry in the same terms.—The inference and analogies of science in the same.—The three chief figures of speech.
—The three chief motifs of poetry.—
Sub-divisions.—Music in terms of the emotions.—Its factors.—Pleasure and pain as co-efficients of expansive and contractive vibration.—Genesis of kinds of matter out of kinds of emotion.—The reverse process of reabsorption by cessation of emotion.—The Meaning of Laya.—Application to Yoga.—Laya as samādhi.—Sleep as one form of it.—Deeper and deeper samādhis and higher and higher manifestations of infinitum.—The Eternal and Transcendent.

SECTION IV.—Kṣaṭy-auka-deshika-prakārama.—One Part out of the Continuum of World-Systems:

The co-ordination and general similarity in diversity of all planes, systems, worlds, individuals.—The peculiar features, of our world-system.—Our sevenfold evolution.—Mineral, vegetable, animal, chandāstha, sāmrātha, abhyāsthā, and human.—Metaphysical laws guiding these.—The appearance of Karma at the human stage.—The distinction between mechanical or automatic action and deliberate action initiated by free-will.—Śānśa and valahsānya, equality and inequality, homogeneity and differentiation, as the meaning of evolution.—Difference of proportion of I and This in the different kingdoms.—Their balancing in the human.—The comparative nature of all such statements.—Endless sub-divisions within each kingdom.—Seven main sub-divisions of each.—Intercourse between the subtle and the four grosser kingdoms.—Its special conditions.—The mutual subservience of all the kingdoms.—Illustrations from Mineralogy, Botany, Medicine, Physical Science.—Subservience due to natural affinities and disparities.—Sciences sub-divided into internal and external, theory and practice, science and art.—Illustration of sub-divisions of types in the case of color.—Changes and correspondences of color.—Use of the science of color in the Science of Love.—The underlying laws of emotion, as applicable to all other forms of manifestation.—The root-emotions, Love and Hate.—The poetical sentiments arising out of them.—The nine poetical sentiments, (in three triplets).—The metaphysic of the relation between substance, sense-quality and vibration.—Some facts relating to the mineral and the devo-kingsoms.—The human kingdom the summation of the other six.—The degrees of the sense of personality.—The seven sheaths of the human being.—The nature of these.—The metaphysical reason thereof.—The moral of the tale.

SECTION V.—Mūtyasvānaprabhāvak.—What to Approve and What to Disapprove:

Co-ordination of apparently conflicting views by considerations of relativity to time, space and circumstances.—Subservience to the evolutionary ideal the one test of right conduct.—The ‘example’ of the hierarchs.—Can a jīva that has attained the knowledge of Brahmān do wrong? The moral bearing, distinguished from the purpose
