Ch 30 Endless moods of the opposites, love and hate: Main subdivisions; different names of the triplets; correspondence with A, U, M; Why the ‘marks’ of the Self are spoken of as six, not three; transcendence of all marks	26
Ch 31 Triplets: Ppratyagatma-Jivatma-Daiviprakriti; Sat-Chit-Ananda; Manas-Buddhi-Ahankara; Sensation-perception-imagination; apprehension-comprehension-ambition; position-composition-supposition; expansion of the small into the Great Self; relation of subtle and gross between primary and secondary, radical and derivative, triplets; Sattva-Rajas-Tamas; Dravya-guna-karma; 12 factors in four triplets corresponding with 12 logia, correspondences and reflexions	37
Ch 32 Triplet of Substance-Quality-Movement: Reasons for the endless quintuplication; Sva-bhava; interdependence of past, present and future in the interdependence of Sva-bhava; Distinction between Sva-bhava or cause and effect, and karana or cause; Dravya-pradravya-anudravya; karma-prekarma-anukarma; guna-praguna-anuguna; the pseudo-continuity despite manifest discreteness of dravya, etc; Sankhya views; Nyaya and vaisheshika vies; nies and triplets; significance of nigrasthana or fallacy	47
Ch 33 Substance, Attribute, and Movement – principal varieties thereof: Seven varieties of each; septenates in this world-system; such distinctions are conventional, for positive delimitation of any brahmanda impossible because of continuous inclusion of smaller in the larger; Kala or Time equivalent to Mahat; Dik or Space to buddhi-tattva; Sensor and motor ‘organs’ corresponding to these; Seven ‘bodies’ of each human; seven layers in each atom; sampadana or development of these; seven gunas; Logia in terms of guna and not dravya, and why; the five sense-qualities as the qualities of the five dravyas, and sankhya or number as the quality of Kala or Time, and samyoga or conjunction of Dik or Space; arithmetic (number) and geometry (space) in connection with Dik; dravyas in terms of logia in the Shakhas of the Vedas; the peculiarity of scriptural sentences.	54
Ch 34 The Evolution of Dravyas: Nyaya-method of determining the logia; I-number-not; I-conjunction-not; Mahat and buddhi-tattvas; Sense-organs and qualities corresponding to these; other names, adi for buddhi-tattva, anupadaka for mahat-tattva; reasons; evolution of tattvas, and corresponding senses and qualities, in successive manvantaras; various kinds of brahmandas; Samvrta and pavrta, the qualities of adi and anupadaka; Brhan-manasa and hrt, their sense organs; the normal development over manvantaras, and abnormal development through yoga; organs of production corresponding to the two.	65
